

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

- The service function and information design process is automated in order to shorten the design process period. The same process is based upon the relationships
- 5 between activities and the information that the activities provide and consume. The relationships are maintained in a predetermined format and are updated by any changes that are affecting the relationships. In addition, the activities are further defined by detailed activities.